PRESS RELEASE

Los Angeles, CA (April 1, 2016)

Two years after its formation, the employment litigation boutique of Grube Brown & Geidt LLP proudly announces the opening of its Los Angeles office. Los Angeles is a natural extension for the San Francisco-based firm, as its attorneys continue to defend employers in complex employment matters throughout the State of California. The Los Angeles office is located at the U.S. Bank Tower, 633 West 5th Street, Suite 3330, Los Angeles, California 90071.

The firm's co-founding partner Lisa Brown will head the Los Angeles office, supported initially by two senior associates, Amanda Crespo and Mario Ortega. Ms. Crespo previously worked at Paul Hastings and Ogletree Deakins. Mr. Ortega previously worked at Paul Hastings. Another GBG founding partner, Jeff Grube, will frequently travel to Los Angeles to support the growing practice, and Ms. Brown will maintain her office in San Francisco.

As GBG expands, the firm and all of its attorneys remain committed to carrying forward the high caliber of client representation on a flexible platform that is individually tailored to each client's needs. GBG looks forward to growing its Los Angeles office and expanding its litigation platform in Southern California through continued excellence in work and dedication to its clients.

And on this exciting occasion, GBG's partners would like to thank their loyal clients who showed great confidence in the firm, and its hard-working attorneys and staff who have enabled us to deliver on the promise of excellence in our work. We look forward to many more productive and exciting years together.
